GENERALLY if a man looks well, he is well.

A clean well-kept home usually houses a thrifty prosperous family, and a well painted town be-speaks pride and prosperity to outsiders. The man who fails to clean up and paint up his property is short-sighted.

Take the effect of paint and varnish out of a town, and what have you—a naked unbeautiful sight; with decay gnawing at every clapboard. Paint is not, as some consider, simply ornamental. It is useful for its preserving qualities, and stands as a badge of prosperity and right citizenship. Clean up a yard and paint up a building and their selling value is enhanced far beyond the cost of the work.

TAX TROUBLES KAISER

Prussian Municipalities Face Difficulties in Placing Loans for War Fund

Berlin, Germany.—The semi-official Cologne Gazette etc., that, amid the conflicting assertions and emotions of the hour, only one thing can be affirmed with certainty—that the imperial chancellor, Herr von Bethmann-Hollweg, finds himself both from the financial and political standpoints in an extremely unenviable position, with regard to the $250,000,000 army increase.

It is now known that wide differences of opinion exist among the members of the federal council of the empire as to ways and means for financing the recurring cost of the army increase, which will be $50,000,000 a year.

The federal states of central Germany are leading the opposition to the proposals in Prussia. A military news agency, which has been well informed on all the developments of the army increase and the war tax assets, that the king of Saxony has organized his non-Prussian fellow sovereigns against the north German tax projects. After the same agency explains to know that the taxes on property will partly take the form of fresh stamp taxes. Articles of luxury will be specially affected, and stock exchange transactions assessed in a way or another.

The banks have now to find $50,000,000 for the undersubscribed half of the new Prussian loan. The German municipalities, which are also borrowing heavily, are finding the greatest difficulty in placing loans. The Berliner Neueste Nachrichten says it would be timely to make a fervent appeal even to the women of Germany to keep their money at home, and not to yield to the tempting offers of Paris dressmakers and milliners, who carry on an active campaign for German trade at this season of the year. The newspapers are overwhelmed with letters from the public protesting against the hardship which will be imposed on them by the war taxes.

CALL FOR ARMY NURSES

Women's Organizations Enter Heartily into the Scheme

Berlin.—Women's organizations in Germany are taking an enthusiastic interest in the scheme to supply the army with thousands of volunteer nurses for emergency service.

Facilities are now to be provided for enabling women of all classes to become nurses. Only those will be accepted who are ready to undergo six weeks' training, which will be given free of charge. Applicants to join the nursing volunteer corps must supply their own equipment and pledge themselves to respond to the call of the war office.

Rome.—A telegram received from Somme, Lombardy, states that while Captain Morone, the commander of the military school there was executing a volplane in an aeroplane he fell from a height of over 500 feet and was killed on the spot.

PANATIC FOLLOWERS GO MAD

Russian Peasants Who Believe That Christ Lived in Russia, Not Palestine

St. Petersburg, Russia.—An Archangel correspondent sends a moving description of the sufferings of the Moldavian peasants who in mid-winter folk, led the 17,000-mile-long pilgrimage to the monastery of the Murovsky, on the Caspian river, where he was banished.

Ragged, starving and frost-bitten, death threatened them all on the snow wastes where the Archangel authorities sent a force of rural guards to stop their march and arrest their leader and telegraphed to the Red Cross Society, urgently asking for medical aid. Some of the pilgrims had money in comparative plenty, for before starting northwards they had sold their belongings, but it was of no avail to them in the frozen wilderness.

Their number was underestimated in the first account. It was well over 1000, including a great proportion of women and children. They were sent back to their homes by train in wretched vans. The correspondent witnessed the departure of one party from the station of Nizhnyaya. Frost-bitten cheeks, ears, fingers and toes were the rule rather than the exception. Nearly all the pilgrims were begrimed with dirt. Many women and children were in hysterics. The occupied one van were squatted on the floor, praying with open lips before them.

The correspondent questioned the pilgrims as to the hold which Innocentius had over them. Incredible as it may seem, he was seized there, in the twelfth century, in a civilized country, the following is the gist of the replies he received: The followers of Innocentius believed that Jesus Christ had appeared in the Omega region and not in Palestine. He was seized there, but was taken elsewhere for crucifixion. Alpha and Omega in the Revelation of the peasant between Omega and Omega. Otherwise why was there housing room for 1000 persons in the Murovsky monastery when the monks only numbered 100? This was the work of the Holy Spirit. The picture of Innocentius had been shown to Jesus Christ with a nimbus encircling his head and a cross and chalice in his hands.

The arrest of Innocentius only served to strengthen their belief in his divinity, and they recounted how, when the rural guards came to arrest him, and one of the guards tried to fire a blank cartridge in order to frighten him, his rifle had misfired three times. In similar miracle had occurred previously at Balta, in Podolia, where the Ispravnik (police officer) insulted Innocentius and advanced towards him threateningly. Innocentius looked straight into his eyes, and said quietly to himself: "The monk who is so full of faith, and the Ispravnik stopped dead, as though paralyzed."

On being confronted by the rural guards the pilgrims gathered round Innocentius, and had to be dragged away by force. The monk who had arrested, the vice-governor of Archangel approached. Innocentius: Where are you going to take him? I am going to seek the new Zion, was the answer, and the crowd of pilgrims in the street. They are going to seek the new Zion.

Innocentius' followers to the far north included his mother and first sisters. When he was at Balta, he attracted thousands of pilgrims to the small monastery by the power with which he was credited of casting out devils. There is an appalling amount of lunacy in that part of Russia, generally ascribed to the peasantry eating a paste of unripe maize instead of leavened bread.

The Balta district became an absolute inferno of the mad, numbers of whom were brought there in bonds. This seems to have been the original reason of Innocentius' banishment. Several imperial investigators notified that there was nothing immoral in his teaching or his life.

GERMAN ROYAL WEDDING
Princess Marie to be Asked to Renounce English Title

Berlin.—The Rhenish Westphalian Gazette, Essen, one of the leading organs of the German aristocratic press, expresses the wish that Princess Marie, sister of the duke of Cumberland, who is engaged to the king's daughter, may be induced to renounce his British title of prince before his marriage.

Owing to the death of King George of Greece, brother of the duchess of Cumberland, the royal wedding, according to the Tagblatt, will be as simple as possible, and only the immediate relatives of the two families will be present. The duke of Cumberland's visit to Potsdam is postponed until after the king's funeral.

Alman Taken for Spies

Berlin.—Two strikers, on alighting at Neufeld, Germany, though wearing the uniforms of officers of the foreign legion, were taken for German spies and chased by a hostile crowd to the police station where their identity was subsequently established.

ARM-IN-ARM WALKING BANNED

Father Taking His Daughter to School One Exception to Rule

Paris, France.—The old-fashioned habit of a man and a woman walking arm-in-arm in public has long gone out of fashion, says the Paris Excelsior.

In its columns a discussion on the subject is taking place, especially on the point: Should the woman place her arm within that of the man, or should he take her?

The spectacle of people walking arm-in-arm is, says the Excelsior, beginning to become quite sensational—unless they are the wife and husband of a nobleman or a king's daughter to school. Whereas in former days the lady timidly placed her hand within the arm of her cavalier, lightly resting on his sleeve, the up-to-date couple walk boldly side by side, the man with both hands behind his back, the woman with both hers in her muff.

There is a time when self-respecting people may permit the ladies to walk arm-in-arm. It is when they are on holiday in the country, in hours of peaceful reverie, when all things in nature seem to hold hands. It is an attitude which demands a certain intimacy, a gentleness of gall and completeness of mind.

No, decidedly, says the Parisian, let us not bring back this arm-in-arm fashion to Paris. The picture is drawn of a young man of the type which is seen frequently in the streets, who takes a girl's arm with a sort of judicial grip, grasping her hand and wrist, holding her elbow as in a vice and in the language of his arm forcing her to walk with one shoulder hunched up and the other lowered. The object appears to be that the man may propel his companion, much as a policeman might propel a recalcitrant offender to the police station.

This is clearly not to be compared for gracefulness with the fashion of a generation ago, when the lady hung lightly on the arm of a strong dashing cavalier.

A man likes the statement that he has risen to the top of the ladder. A woman resents the intimation that she wasn't always there.

St. Paul Park Incident

"After drinking coffee for breakfast I always felt languid and dull, having no ambition to get to my morning duties. Then in about an hour or so a weak, nervous derangement of the heart and stomach would come over me with such force I would frequently have to lie down."

Tea is just as harmful, because it contains caffeine, the same drug found in coffee.

At other times I had severe headaches; stomach finally became affected and digestion so impaired that I was unable to eat. Dr. Pierce's Food and Constitution. A lady, for many years State Physician of the W.C.T.U., told me she had been greatly benefited by getting coffee and using Postum. She was troubled for years with indigestion. She said it was no cross to quit coffee when she found she could have as delicious an article as Postum.

Another lady, who had been troubled with chronic dyspepsia for years, told me that Postum was a God-send, her fears of trouble having been relieved after leaving off coffee and taking on Postum.

So many such cases came to my notice that I concluded coffee was the cause of my trouble and I quit and took up Postum. I am more than pleased to say that my days of trouble have disappeared. I am well and happy.

THE FRENCH FAVOROLLES.

Our French artists do beat the Dutch turning out fashions that are extraordinarily picturesque and peculiar and among these is that rooster with whiskers, the Faverolle, a breed that is gaining ground in this country with those who want birds for beauty as well as utility, and Mr. Muffe Choppe for both does fill the bill.

The varieties of the breed comprise French Salmon, French Black and French Black, English Salmon and English Ermine Faverolles.

Their origin is France, but the English rooster fanciers claim to have made some improvement and thus attach their trademark to two varieties. The distinctive characteristics of the breed are the whiskers, five toes and feather legging.

The whiskering does not grow up over the eyes to obscure the vision as in some bearded breeds and is a distinct advantage in winter, as it protects against cold. The fifth toe is so useless as with the Houdan and Dorking, but is useful for extra links in garden destruction.

Faverolle chicks are hardy and mature rapidly, the pullets laying early and making heavy winter layers.

The French and English are very enthusiastic over the Faverolle as a mar-

"Well, by Jove," replied the pseudo suicide, "when I freeze I mean to take a warmer night than this for it's still."

"A PECULIAR PEOPLE."

Dispute Dispersion and Persecution the Jews Remain Virile.

The Scriptures call the Jews "a peculiar people," and that they are and always have been. We are now progressing along in the 20th century of the Christian era, and shall be obliged to go back as many centuries before that date to reach the first mythical beginnings in the history of the Jew. The founder of the Hebrew race, Abram, afterward called Abraham, was an Asiatic chieftain, or nomad chief. His original home was in central Asia, somewhere in the valley of the Euphrates. With his flocks and herds and some of his relatives with theirs, the wanderer took Horace-Greeley's advice and set his face westward. In due time he reached the valley of the Jordan and settled there.

The descendants of Abraham got into Egypt, where for several centuries they were enslaved by the Pharaohs. From this point on we have a little more accurate account of their doings in the books of Moses, which deal with their settlement of the land of Canaan.

About the time of their settlement, or soon after, began a conflict between Asia and Europe for control of the human race and its life. This was culminated in the invasion of Greece by Alexander, and was followed by the overrunning of Asia by Antiochus. The conflict between Carthage and Rome, and kept up in the long struggle between the Saracens, Tartars and Turks with the broken remnants of the Roman empire.

During these conflicts, Canaan lay right in the path of the armies and was often the scene of bloody battles between the combatants. There is no fight in history more courageous, patriotic or dramatic than that of the Maccabees against their Gentile oppressors.

About the time of the appearance of the founder of Christianity, the Romans got about as tired of Judaea, and the final dispersion of the Jews began. The wanderings of the race have gone on from that time to this, until there is scarcely a corner of the globe where Jews are not found engaged in all kinds of industrial activities and mental pursuits, and generally with remarkable success. The people are as peculiar today as when that writer of their own race placed that epithet to their credit. After a period of 4,000 years the race remains virile, prolific and progressive beyond anything recorded of any other race in the pages of history.

Their rise in intellectual achievements as well as in that of property has been accomplished in the face of universal and persistent opposition, most unjust and cruel. A Hebrew writer of 18th century, Joseph de Isaac, representing Ishmael's descendants, that "his hand should be locked in iron against him." The last part of this prophecy has been fulfilled in the history of the descendants of Isaac much more than in those of his half-brother.

Russia is no different from other Christian nations in its treatment of the Jewish people, excepting in being a bit of a splinter. At the time when the pagan Emperor Nero smothered the Jewish people of Rome with crude asphaltum and fire, there was no first intimation on record of an ornamental illumination of a city at night. As a result of the Christian ages, the tyrant's bad example has been followed with considerable faithfulness in the treatment of the Jews. All through Europe in the middle ages, whenever a profligate, dissolute, spendthrift monarch interrupted his own treasury he raised a loud cry against the Jews, and during the riots and massacres that followed the "peculiar people" were robbed right and left, while the Kings and their followers filled their treasury at the expense of the industrious, thrifty children of Israel. In all Europe there was no country that excelled England in this cruel treatment of the Israelites.

Changing Serpents Into Rods.

The Egyptian cobra is not unlike its Asiatic cousin except in the absence of the curious spectacle-like mark which distinguishes the latter. Although it is the most poisonous reptile known to inhabit northern Africa, it is the favorite among the snake charmers. These conjurers know how to render this serpent rigidly unconscious by pressing the nape of its neck with a finger. This act appears to throw the reptile into a stupor in which it is as stiff as an iron rod. Traces of something similar having been practiced in olden times may be found in the Bible, where Aaron made a serpent of his rod or staff.

Left Hand Cigars.

It isn't because the cigar is badly made that the wrapper sometimes comes unrolled. It is because the cigar is a left-handed one.

A nervous smoker, twisting and turning his cigar, has no trouble with a fight hand one, but if it happens to be a left hand one it is apt to count upside.

One After the Other.

She—When we are married, dear, there shall be three servants. He—Certainly, darling. But to keep each as long as possible.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

"I SHOULD WORRY."

Our Latest Slang Phrase Seems to Be Common Property.

"Ich sollte sorgen."
"He sees man!"
"Ich soll ankommen."
"I shall incarnate."

Nations are fighting for it. Up on the north side the Germans are positive that the expression was invented by Goethe himself. On the other side the Greeks insist that the expression was born at Therapia when Leonidas gazed complacently at the borders of Persians and then at his own stomach little later the French claim they have shrugged their shoulders to "Je sera malheureux" since the days of Charlemagne. The Italians say the phrase fell from the lips of the dying Nero while Rome was in flames. And all it means is:

"I should worry."

This phrase, expressive of complacency during circumstances commonly supposed to be of a trying nature, has fastened its way into the vocabulary with all the adhesive qualities of "Twenty-three-skiddoo." Tell it to "Sweeney" and "I gotcha, Steve." It is a wholesome and exceedingly expressive phrase for a rather complicated mental attitude, said an instructor at the University of Chicago who preferred not to have his name used.

"Personally," said he, "I am of the belief that the expression was born in the United States in the translation from the German 'Ich sollte' of the Germans is a common usage, and in translation to the English it has a quaint ring that is irrefragable."

"There was a lengthy discussion in the Auditorium theater when the operators were asked if they were acquainted with the American 'I should worry.'"

"That is our 'Sargincenstero'!" cried one of the singers. "It should be in thought, should brood." In fact, "I should worry." Oh, yes! It is common enough to us. When we have to ride on the street cars and sleep many times in a week and sleep in uncomfortable beds we just think of our salaries, and then we say, "Sargincenstero."—Chicago News.

MADE THE GAME LEVELY.

The Bateman and the Umpire Were

Ample "Red" Field, who worked in the Connecticut league last season, tells of an experience he had in the Kansas State league. "It was running a hard fought game," says Field. "In the ninth inning the home team got two men on and the next batsman batted. The batsman ran to first and got there in safety. A riot broke loose when I declared two men out. If I told the truth, I was wrong, according to rules, for hitting an infield fly with first and second bases occupied."

"But the second scorer never caught the ball! I raised a bully who was sadly in need of a hair cut."

"He didn't have to catch it. The batsman was out automatically with only one down and two bases occupied." "He was out automatically," was he declared the commentator. "Well, I guess it's time for you to go out automatically." With that he soaked me in the neck with a right hook. You can bet I was in the front of that burg. When the sun went down I beat it out the back way, hopped a slow freight and resigned by wire the next day."—New York World.

A New Use For Beggars.

A hotel keeper in the suburbs of Paris, having been much troubled with mendicants, put a wheel near the entrance to the building, and above it was placed a sign reading: "Charity degrades it." The beggars, who were used to the wheel until the discovery was made that the force employed was utilized to draw water from a well which served a practical purpose in the neighborhood and hostility. Then, according to the story, no beggars were seen in the vicinity.—Harper's.

Painless Slughter.

The Zoophilist, organ of the National Anti-vivisection society of England, gives a description of a new instrument "for the elimination of pain in the slaughter of animals for food." The instrument, according to the description, "when the air is pumped into it acquires a pressure of 100 pounds to the square inch and releases a bolt which is driven into the animal's head, and once the bolt is in place the coil of justice to animals, under whose auspices the painless method was demonstrated at the Tullington abattoir, pronounced the method "safe as it is humane."

HOW TO SAVE.

Hints For Fighting the High Cost of Living.

The problem of how to lighten the cost of high living is vital one to-day, and especially is this question absorbing to the poor man's wife. Her husband must somehow manage to make the best of everything. Ruthless as "industry without art is cruelty," and she must just keep in mind that "a penny saved is a penny earned" and that every piece of food thrown out is money thrown away.

Here are four things that help much in lowering the cost of high living:

They are by no means large quantities as possible, thereby getting a reduction. Use things in season, when they are cheapest. When egg prices soar search your cook book and household magazines for "eggless" recipes. Make a systematic collection of economical nutritious dishes.

When eggs are high, try in making doughnuts and mash a good-sized potato, best it in with the sugar and make the doughnuts at usual without any eggs.

In making pumpkin or squash pies place a few small crackers first. Use as much of them in bulk as you would of eggs. You could not tell the difference.

When you want pudding for dinner and have no milk try adding another egg. Use things in season, when they are cheap. When egg prices soar search your cook book and household magazines for "eggless" recipes.

Deering Harvesting Machines

Is your present equipment of harvesting machines satisfactory?

How about your binder? How old is it? Does it lack the improvements which have been put on later model machines? If it does, you need a new one which will harvest your crop easily and quickly.

And where is your mower? Is it in good shape, or does it also lack the improvements which are contained in new machines?

Do you own a satisfactory hay rake?

How about the hay tedder?

Perhaps you already own some of these machines, but if you don't, isn't it good business policy for you to investigate Deering harvesting machines which are recommended by thousands of farmers?

If you will investigate the Deering machines it will help you to get better and bigger results. You will not go on using old, worn-out machines which do not have present day improvements.

An investigation does not place you under any obligation to buy. Come in and see us. Get a Deering catalogue which explains details.

CROSSFIELD, ALTA., APRIL 17, 1913

Political Meeting.

On Monday evening a meeting in the interest of both the candidates in the I.O.O.F. Hall, Crossfield. The hall was well filled.

Capt. Wight occupied the chair. Senator Talbot addressed those present on behalf of C. W. Fisher. Speaking on education, he said no province in Canada or State in America was as well provided for as the province of Alberta. The government went in for good schools, properly equipped, teachers well trained. Since 1905 a school district had been opened every school day. Well educated children made good citizens. In speaking of public works, he said the Parliament buildings were a credit to the province, were well built with good material, and no complaints as to the money spent on them. Bains were also a credit, well built and good steel had been used and these were for the benefit of the population of the country. Railways had been assisted, and mentioned the C.N. and C.T.P. The speaker went to explain the Alberta Great Waterways scheme the Royal Commission had declared to be a foolish bargain, through this scheme Rutherford had to retire. Mr. Sifton took the matter in hand and part is now constructed and it would be completed in the near future. Cases of injustice were spoke of in connection with the Farm Machine Act. Railway Company Elevators and the Elevator companies were up for seizure, cases being quoted of the latter wanting all the grain that passed over the railways, the farmers having to sell at the company's price. Railways holding up cars because they were interested in the elevators, also gave cases where grain had been stored in bins of an inferior quality and the farmers had been cheated in the price. This act would compel the railways to find cars to ship grain to Winnipeg or other places where they could get a fair price, by this Act the Government would find money to build elevators. (Applause).

Mr. McCardle in reply said this was the first time he had been to Crossfield and it gave him pleasure to speak in the conservative cause. He was not in the habit of making political speeches. It was three years since a general election, when the battle cry was the S.R.'s, Rutherford, Roads and Railways. A dying government had pushed through a bill at the last minute to build a railroad to Fort Murray. Their railway policy was bad, money had been lent on the bonds of a railway that was not constructed. If the government had done their duty the present state of things would not be as they are. He mentioned that $7,400,000 had been put in the bank and he wanted to know what had become of the $4,700,000. He thought Rutherford was honest but he had been duped by some one else. Cross had him under his thumb. We had stood the Sifton medicine 3 years and Sifton thought we were strong enough to stand a little more. It had been a one man parliament, and he had had the most important portfolios himself. Farmers went to the Government to get an Act. What did they get? They didn't get what they asked for. Cases were cited showing how the Implement Co.'s had by their dealings with farmers been their ruin. Not alone farmers but other people were suffering through the Machine Act. Companies had no right to take machines etc., off a place unless they were allowed. Speaking at some length on the A. & G. W. riddle, he said Mr. Sifton was going to settle it after a law suit. On the Natural Resources he said Borden would give them, but the people had voted against it. If you vote the same way he will say the people don't want them. The Elevator Act was no new plank it commenced in 1911, they didn't vote the money and it couldn't be had for 12 months. The Telephone came in for criticism, they had not got good men in it, they were politicians not electricians. Senator Talbot replied and said Mr. McCardle had misunderstood some of his statements, and tried to make his points more fully, he said the Government would lose nothing by the A.G.W. scheme. The Liberal party was for the masses of the people. The Conservatives make a few propositions and expect it to pass to the masses.
